My Heroine

I have always looked up to Lui Lai Hung as my heroine since I watched a movie called 'Little Big Master'. The film is based on the true story of Hongkonger, Lillian Lui Lai Hung. Her story has inspired many people to realize the importance of education and pay attention to poor students. Her spirit of self-sacrifice and enthusiasm towards education have taught me a valuable lesson on life.

Lui Lai Hung sacrificed her bright future just for the five children. Before that, she was the principal in an elite school with a high salary. But she decided to teach in a village school with just five students on a salary of simply Hk$4500 a month. She has to be the principal, teacher, clerk, janitor and so on. But she isn't afraid and has persevered in taking up this incredible job.

Lui Lai Hung is enthusiastic about teaching. At first, she planned to have an early retirement so that she could travel around the world with her husband. But she put aside her travel plan and took up the great challenge with her husband's support. She devoted her time and life to the five children's future but ignored her health. She is always willing to sacrifice herself for her students, and she keeps standing by them when they need her.

Lui Lai Hung is my heroine. She has inspired me to try my best to help others.
