What an affluent city Hong Kong is! Hong Kong is an important financial center in the world, which is full of famous banks and gigantic Corporations such as HSBC and DBS. Many people here are getting successful, and our living standard is improving. But how about our quality of life?

On pavements, we can see a lot of garbage like cartons and plastic bags. While it is piling up, no one cares about cleaning the streets. "That's not my concern!" We say that frequently and are indifferent to the problem of pollution. We face it on a daily basis, which is getting worse day after day.

Hong Kong's landfills are posing a colossal environmental threat. They are increasingly saturated, containing 2.617 kg waste per sq.km, the highest in the world.

This astonishing number indicates that the damage caused by environmental problem is far beyond our imagination, our Earth is in danger. Somebody will ask, what can we do? We are just ordinary people! Actually, everyone can contribute to tackle these problems, in order to protect our Earth.

You can join green groups and because volunteers take public transport more often instead of driving. This will certainly alleviate air pollution. We can surely do a lot more than we can imagine to see a more beautiful tomorrow.
