

The Joy of School Life

2D Lau Chun Yu

Some students think that school life means learning and having exams and tests. They may only be concerned about the numerous obstacles they have encountered at school and neglect the fact that their school life could make them happier and mature.

Other than learning, we can do a lot of meaningful activities at school such as playing football, basketball and musical instruments. We can go out to see an exhibition or do a survey in English. These activities can improve our English speaking skills and we can learn more extra-curricular knowledge.

Many students think exams and tests are so terrible. However, exams and tests are great opportunities for them to make an effort to strive for good academic results. Besides studying, we can share our joys with our classmates. Sometimes we have a party to celebrate a classmate's birthday. We order some pizzas, snacks and drinks for our party. At that moment, we can have a great time together.

School life makes you excited and it can help you to make more friends, too! You can do a lot of meaningful things in your school life. Don't just think school life is a big obstacle and it is always full of tests and exams. Make the most of the learning opportunities in your school life.
