

My Great Idol – Francine 2D (2)

My role model is Maine Mendoza. She is from the Philippines. She is a celebrity, actress and an awesome and funny social media person. Maine is one of the few who has provided a new social media platform. She uses it to influence people in a positive manner.

In her early life of being a child, she and all her family member, her mother (Mary Ann), father (Teddy) and her other siblings slept in one room to save money on electricity. They grew up with parents who worked 5 days a week. Now that they're grown ups, they don't have to sleep in one room. After joining the best show business in the Philippines called Eat Bulaga and creating one of the best love teams, Alden & Yayadub , she becomes the person she is today.

As a celebrity, she not only appeared in commercials and on billboard, but also be on a cover of magazine, star in a movie (Imagine You & Me) and have a million followers on her social media accounts. Some of the biggest movers and shakers of the industry surprised Maine by giving their insights, awards and special messages to her. Maine has taught people to fight the negatives and always brighten up the positive.

Many people learn from her because of her kindness, forgivingness and hard work in overcoming difficulties. Her kindness has helped her and people around her like me. I become more positive and confident in socializing with new people. Lastly, she has made people forgive others and themselves after all the bad and hard times because life is too short for arguments and fights.

Maine Mendoza is my role model because she has inspired me to believe in what I do and improve myself in things that I am passionate about like drawing. I haven't really decided whether I would like to be like her in the future, but it wouldn't hurt to try. I'm sure it won't be easy to be as kind-hearted as her.
