Adrian and Ben had just gotten out of detention for playing a prank on their teacher in their last day at school before the summer holiday began. As soon as they got out of school, they decided to call their three other friends, Sarah, James and Joe.

They met at a McDonald's to talk about how they were going to spend their summer holiday. While they were discussing, Adrian found an old newspaper that said "Loch Ness Monster Still Unexplained!" As soon as Adrian and his friends saw the news, they knew what they were going to do for their holiday. "Scotland isn't too far from our home," said Joe excitedly! "Well, of course, it isn't. We live in Wales," replied Sarah.

On 3rd July, Adrian and his friends arrived at Scotland and they asked some local citizens how to go to Loch Ness Lake. After a few hours, they found the lake that was said to be the home of the Loch Ness Monster! Sarah and James began to set the traps, while Adrian, Joe and Ben were camping out to see if they could actually find the monster. When James and Sarah set up the traps, a man came to them and said, "Don't bother trying. Strange things have been happening in this lake and yet not a single soul has gotten any conclusive evidence on the monster except the picture taken a few years ago by a journalist." The man left with a sigh.

Sarah and James went back to their friends and told them what exactly the man said. Instead of being discouraged, Joe said, "We can be the first humans to capture the Loch Ness Monster alive and breathing in front of a camera!"

It was late at night. Sarah and James were becoming scared. Meanwhile Adrian, Joe and Ben were determined to catch the monster! It was around the middle of the night that James got a signal from the trap, so he alerted everyone as soon as he could. They got up and started heading to the trap. It was really dark, so they couldn't see anything. However, Joe got a feeling that something was behind them, so he pointed the flashlight at the back there. It was the legend. It was the Loch Ness Monster!

The monster let out a huge roar, which scared them away. However, the monster didn't let them go. It chased after them! Adrian and James quickly thought of a stunning plan. They went into a small cave. The Loch Ness Monster stopped chasing them because of its size. It could not get inside the tiny hole. The monster ended up vanishing, and the kids were filled with joy. They had gotten it all on a camera, so they all decided to sleep in the cave until it was safe to go out. However, when they got up in the morning, the camera was gone!

The kids got out of the cave and went back to Wales with tears on their eyes. Adrian cheered them up by saying that at least they could see the living legend face to face!

Before they left Scotland, they met the strange man again. "The monster will always be a mystery," said the strange man with a camera on his hand!
