

Homework-Free Holiday

3B Karson Ng (18)

If I had a homework-free holiday, I would learn a new skill from the Internet. The new skill is how to set up the programmes for doing Maths homework.

The programmes are beneficial to us. It is because they can broaden our Maths knowledge, guide us to calculate, verify whether our answers are correct, and list out the steps required in finding out the solutions. They can also make us use a calculator faster.

I think if I could learn this skill, I would feel satisfied even though I might have to sit in front of the computer for a whole day, because I am in love with Maths so much more than other subjects.
