

My Dream Job

6D Ng Ki Man

“Without dreams, people lose their souls.” This is the motto of my life. You do everything in order to achieve your dream and part of it lies your dream job. What is your dream job? Be a doctor, a vet or a firefighter? There are a variety of jobs for you to choose from. Teacher is my ideal job.

When I was little, my parents were busy with their work. How busy were they? We managed to eat dinner together once a week. Therefore, I had been living with my grandparents for a long time. Without my parents’ care and love, I became rebellious and did not like studying. Fortunately, my teacher, Miss Wu, didn’t give up on me. She often talked to me and helped me a lot. When I was sad, she was the first one who comforted me. When I made progress, she was the first one who encouraged me and gave me energy. In one of my final examinations, she took time out of her busy schedule to do make-up lessons for me. And I got good results in the exam. I am really grateful to her. From that time onwards, I have been determined to be a teacher.

Now, I know that being a teacher is a responsibility and teachers must love teaching and their students. I love a saying – ‘know the old and know the new’. After becoming a teacher, I can keep learning with my students. I impart knowledge to them and at the same time I may learn something from them.

However, it’s not easy to be a teacher. I must study harder and get a place in university. Also, I should enrich myself by learning different skills and exploring new subjects. If my students learn something from me, I will be very “successful”.

“Teachers are the guiding lights of life.” I hope I can be one of the lights someday.
