

A Terrible Trend—K-pop

4D 9 Hong Yuandai

K-pop wave has huge influences on Asia. Both boy bands and girl bands have many loyal fans, including my sisters, who love BTS and Girls' Generation. They can watch their shows all day, which is so crazy!

However, I don't like K-pop much. In my opinion, the boy bands are handsome but they look too skinny in their tight clothes. And they always wear identical make-up with the same hairstyle! I can't accept boys who have make-up on their faces. It's so absurd. Women wear make-up because they want to look more beautiful but men should have masculine appearance. I hate them and every time when my sisters watch their idol's shows, I will run far from them because I don't want to listen to their songs or watch their dances.

Another reason why I hate K-pop is that the stars look alike. I cannot distinguish who they are! Their make-up, outfits and hairstyles are the same in order to provide a sense of "family resemblance". However, when they are dancing on the stage, they all look the same. It is too difficult for a non-fan to identify them one by one. I cannot see the beauty of this uniformity. If this trend continues, the audience will be tired of watching such performances with no diversity.

Moreover, I think that the government of South Korea should intervene in this issue. This is because K-pop stars are influential among teenagers, who want to look like their idols. Boys wear make-up and girls undergo cosmetic surgery. Our bodies are derived from our parents, so we should not hurt them. What's more, surgeries have many health risks such as infections.

So, I think that it is the time for the government of South Korea to bring about changes to K-pop. Please give us more choices!