

Sequel to the Dead Sons

Thousands of years ago, Hou Yi shot down nine suns, leaving only one in the sky. After knowing this, Di Jun was very sad and angry.

Nine suns got shot and fell from the heaven. They hit the earth in different areas. Di Jun missed his sons so much that every year, Di Jun sneaked down to the mortal world to find his sons. However, a year had passed but there was no sign to show where their dead bodies were.

Di Jun was so sad that he cried and the tears dropped onto earth. The tears went into the soil and reach his sons corpses. Three years later, nine grouts grew from their bodies and gradually they grew to be nine saplings. Another three years passed and the grouts grew into nine trees. Three years later, beautiful white flowers blossomed and soon the trees were full of big red round fruit. When it was cut into half, it still showed a sunshine image. They looked exactly like Di Jun's sons – NINE SUNS.

These naughty suns became delicious oranges and they were able to feed the mortal's while their only brother was carrying out his duty in the sky.

By Anna Tse, 5C

(189 words)

