

My Dream Job- a Veterinarian

Since childhood, I've always loved animals. I often watched documentaries about them. I just adore them so much and want to take care of them. That is why my dream job is to become a veterinarian. A veterinarian takes care of and treats animals.

I want to become a vet to help injured animals and take care of them. The best part of becoming a vet is that I can be a doctor for different kinds of animals, not just pets. It's really exciting just thinking about it. However, there are some downsides. It breaks my heart seeing animals not being treated right and die. If I become a vet, I will surely encounter that as well, but I have to get used to it. Therefore, it could also be heartbreaking if my dream come true.

There are many advantages of being a vet. Not only can I work with these wonderful creatures but I'll also work with colleagues who have the same passion and love for animals. You may be thinking that vets have to do some 'bloody' work as well, like doing surgery and seeing animals bleeding. Also, becoming a vet means long working hours as well. I admit it's not going to be easy. However, it's all worth it. I get to do what I love. Seeing them in pain is excruciating but I'll be doing something for their own good. The outcome is what matters the most.

I have worked in an animal centre before. I took care of the pets there. I fed and played with them. I'm still trying to get more work experience so I can learn. It will become a huge benefit if I want to become a vet.

My attributes include good communication skills. I can talk to pet owners about relevant stuffs about their pets. Also, I have patience and empathy which are really important for caring for the animals.

To pursue my dream job, I must work hard and study science subjects that might help get me into a vet school. I must do a lot of research as well. I hope my dream can come true.
