

Film Review

About Time (2013) - A romantic film at all time

Rating: 3 / 4

Suitable for: all ages

Reviewed by: Pearl Chung

About Time is premiered in the UK on 4th September, 2013. This is a romantic film directed by Richard Curtis.

Tim Lake starring Domhnall Gleeson knows from his father that he can travel through time to start a new story from the beginning. The story takes place in London where Tim is looking for a job. He meets a woman, Mary starring Rachel McAdams. They exchange their phone number and start dating. They have a nice time.

Not long, Tim loses the opportunity to meet Mary one day because he wants to help his father's friend. But sadly, his father dies. When Tim knows that he can get back to the past, what would he do? You will surely be amazed at what happens next.

I am satisfied with this film. Although the plot is unremarkable, it brings out the charm and style of the characters in the film. I love the message that it sends: do not try to change the past, no matter what it is. Instead you should try to change yourself to become a person you want to be.

I highly recommend this film. It will be great to bring your boyfriend or girlfriend to watch it on a weekend.