

If you became a millionaire,
how would you spend wisely for your financial future?

Sometimes thinking about becoming a millionaire brings me happiness. If I became a millionaire, I would not need to worry about many things. I could also buy whatever I want. But I would spend wisely for my financial future.

If I became a millionaire, I would have plenty of money. I would plan before using my money. I would think about what things I want to buy. I would also keep a budget and spend as planned. I would follow the 3S principle. The first priority would be saving. I would save my money in the bank to earn more interest.

After saving money, I would have much money to spend. I could buy an expensive car and an expensive house.

Lastly, I would share my money, because when I was half done buying things, I might still have some money left. Then I could donate some money to charity. I would help everyone in need, assist somebody really poor to get food so that they would not be hungry, and give them clothes to keep them warm in winter.

After keeping my savings and making donations, I would have my own free time to do everything I want. For example, I could travel to every country or city I like, such as Korea, Japan, Thailand, Shanghai, Taiwan and Guangzhou. These places are where I want to visit. I could also learn their local cultures and see beautiful views there.

It is great to think of the things I could do as a millionaire, but these are just imaginations only. I hope one day my dream will be able to come true. I will work harder to make it happen.
