

The Alien Attack

Long ago, there were two astronauts in the control room of a spaceship. They were supposed to control the spaceship, but they started to mess around and press random buttons instead. At first, it was all fun and games and they thought nothing of it, but then, a bunch of smoke started to come out causing the engine to suddenly break down. The astronauts became nervous and tried to take control of the spaceship once more, but it was far too late. Smoke continued to fill out the spaceship from inside and outside and they were confused about why the panel wouldn't work.

As the spaceship came crashing down, the astronauts were unconscious for at least five minutes and woke up gasping for air and waiting for the smoke to clear up. As the smoke finally cleared up, they went outside only to discover a UFO hovering above them and shot a light beam.

Then, the UFO started to malfunction and eventually broke down into pieces. Unexpectedly, an alien jumped out of the UFO and climbed into the broken spaceship to welcome the astronauts with a grin. It appeared in front of them and started speaking in an unknown foreign language which sounded like gibberish to them.

Suddenly, one of the astronauts smirked and started to speak in the same language. "How do you know the language?" she asked curiously. The other astronaut then suddenly revealed that he was secretly an alien in disguise, wearing a human skin over his own.
