Title: My Hero

My Hero

Do you have a hero in your life? I think you will say “Yes!”. Your hero may be Spiderman, Batman or Iron man but mine is not. My hero is my grandmother. She is a superwoman in my mind. She helps poor people, her friends and me. She is helpful. She likes to do good deeds and she loves to show her warm heart..

My grandmother is not very rich but she likes to spend a lot of money to help the poor. One day, my grandmother and I went to the supermarket to buy a lot of different kinds of goods. “Why do you buy so much food? Are you hungry?” I asked. “No! I want to buy some food for the poor.” said my grandmother. Then, we went to the park in the evening because she said that some beggars would sleep in the park at that time. We brought the food to the park. The park was very dark so I wanted to go home. However, she did not allow me to go. “The beggars are pity so you must put some food on their dish !” she said. At this moment, I thought my grandmother is wonderful.

Suddenly, grandmother accidentally stepped on the foot of one of the beggars'. The beggar was angry and he shouted "What are you doing here? Get out quickly!" We were scared of him because he was taller than us. Although he was so rude, grandmother was brave. Then she said "I am so sorry! I just want to give you some food. Are you hungry?" I think the beggar felt so touched because he gave us a smile.

After this incident, I learnt that "If you do everything from your heart, this is enough!" Although my grandmother just did little things to help people, it was enough because she was sincere to help . "Good People" and "Good Deeds" are not just for famous people. If you want to be good, you can do something to help others. After that, when all people do good deeds, this world will be more beautiful.

Finally, though my grandmother is just an ordinary woman and she is old, she has been doing a lot of good deeds. Therefore, I am so proud of her.
