My Heroine

I have always looked up to Lui Lai Hung as my heroine since I watched a movie called ' Little Big Master '. The film is based on the true story of a Hongkonger, Lillian Lui Lai Hung. Her story has inspired many people to realize the importance of education and pay attention to poor students. Her spirit of self-sacrifice and enthusiasm towards education have taught me a valuable lesson on life.

She sacrificed her bright future just for the five children. In fact, she was originally a principal who taught in an elite school with a high salary. But she decided to teach in a village school with just five students. Being given a salary of just Hk$4,500 a month, she has to be the principal, teacher, clerk, janitor and so on. But she is not afraid and has stuck to this seemingly impossible job.

Also, she is enthusiastic about teaching. At first, she planned to take an early retirement so that she could travel around the world with her husband. However, with her husband's support, she abandoned her travel plan and took a great risk. She devoted her time and life to the five children's future and ignored her health. She is always willing to sacrifice herself for her students. She is always there for her students when they need her.

Lui Lai Hung is my heroine. She has inspired me to try my best to help others.
